

A.C.E. Announcements

Message from the Director
ITALIA DAVIES

It is my pleasure to welcome you to our first issue of

ACE ANNOUNCEMENTS.

This monthly newsletter is designed to highlight the activities of the four schools governed by the Anglican Central Education Authority (ACEA): St. John's College and St. Anne's School in New Providence, Bishop Michael Eldon School in Grand Bahama and St. Andrew's Anglican School in Exuma.

Our mission is to foster the development of our students' spiritual, academic, physical, social, and emotional abilities.

To help us achieve our goals, we have recently welcomed two new members: Mrs. Alicia Brennen-Braithwaite, Deputy Director of Curriculum & Supervision and Mrs. Jennifer Basden, Chief Development Officer. I am excited about our new team and confident that together we will continue to help our students reach their full potential while maintaining our vision of Excellence, Equity and Opportunity.

We thank our current parents for entrusting their children to our care and we look forward to welcoming new families to our school community in the new school year! We invite the support of our alumni and encourage you to partner with us in building on the rich legacy of Anglican education.

Message from the Chief Development Officer

JENNIFER BASDEN

I am very delighted to have been chosen to be part of the ACEA team. I come with the mandate to foster a spirit of philanthropy in support of our ACEA schools.

This vision can be best achieved with the support of our alumni, our church family and the wider community. We have already embarked on some initiatives that highlight the excellent performances of our students within our schools.

However, in order to properly equip them for the future, we will need to provide them with unique opportunities and the right tools. This can only be achieved through the injection of considerable funds.

Therefore, my overarching mandate is to implement strategies to develop donors and contributions to support our schools. I welcome your assistance as we seek to develop ACEA schools that can compete with the best and brightest.

'If you think education is expensive – try ignorance!'

Message from the Deputy Director
ALICIA BRENNEN-BRATHWAITE

It is indeed a pleasure to have been granted this unique opportunity to serve in the capacity as the new Deputy Director for Curriculum and Instruction.

This position comes at a time when we are challenged to raise global citizens in a world wrought with economic challenges, threats to national security, shifting weather patterns and alternative lifestyles. But, through faith in God and a diligent pursuit of the goals of the ACEA, I intend to work with our director, principals and staff to raise young people who will carry on the Anglican faith, influence our society with godly character and impact the world with academic excellence and athletic prowess.

The ACEA is achieving this by providing Christian educators who are passionate and equipped to provide quality, research-based instruction to our students. We, therefore, covet the support and prayers of the wider Anglican community to help us to build a resilient generation who will carry on the traditions and legacy of those who have gone before, all products of ACEA schools, who continue to make their mark on our society and the wider world.

The ACEA is delighted to announce our new website. It has been months in the planning and we are almost there!

Our goal for the new site is to provide our visitors with an extremely user-friendly format that's both sleek and modern. The new innovative ACEA website will offer more functionality and easier navigation for parents, teachers and visitors with more in-depth information about the ACEA and of course our schools.

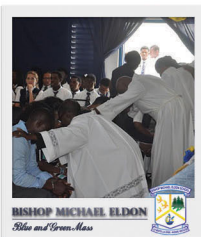

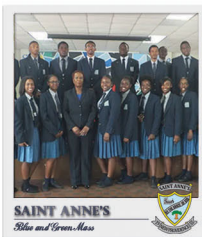

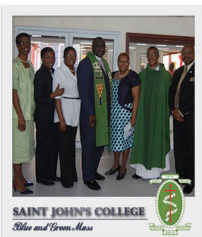

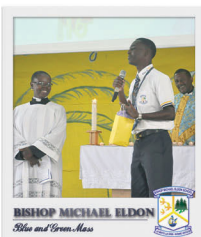

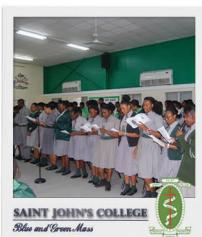

Students will also be able to access Edline to review grades and class schedules. We hope that you enjoy discovering the new website and that you find it easy to navigate and pleasant to use.
